

Summer School 2005

11-15 July Urbino, Italy

acevo is delighted to present its first summer school in partnership with the University of Urbino.

Experience sharing, knowledge exchange and open debate will enable advanced learning on cross-cutting issues such as management, organisational development, sustainable funding and policy trends.

Workshops will tackle issues using comparative analytical frameworks while British and Italian good-practice will stimulate debate on the future and vision of the third sector.

The summer school is part of acevo's 2005 international programme.

Key speakers include:

- Richard Bennett, Chief Executive, BOND (British Overseas NGOs for Development)
- Stephen Bubb, Chief Executive, acevo
- Paddy Fitzgerald, Chairman Royal Academy of Arts
- Tom Flood, Chief Executive, British Trust for Conservation Volunteers
- Giulio Marcon, President Lunaria
- Alessandro Messina, Director of Project "The city of the other economy", the new neighbourhood for the social economy, City of Rome
- Ed Mayo, Chief Executive, National Consumer Council
- Carlo Petrini, President of Slow Food
- Mario Pianta, Director of the Master in Not-for-profit Organisation, University of Urbino
- Representative of European Commission
- Fabio Salviato, President of Banca Etica
- Nereo Zamaro, Research Director of National Institute of Statistics (ISTAT) and Director of ISTAT survey on Italian not-for-profit Organisations

(Speakers subject to confirmation)

Fee: £495 members, £695 non-members
Accommodation, dining and group transfers included. Flights not included.

School open to Chief Executives and senior management teams of third sector organisations. Places are limited. Register your interest: 0845 130 4643, filippo.addarii@acevo.org.uk