Communication and relational skills: I appreciate teamwork, I have worked in many academic groups and I have practiced different team sports. I think that direct contact with people is the best way to achieve the objectives set. For this reason, I like to openly discuss every issue in a pro-active and trusting way, giving particular emphasis on possible future scenarios. I welcome cultural diversities because, in my opinion, they can always lead to something positive and constructive, as well as representing a big opportunity for knowledge and personal growth. I have a remarkable ability in abstraction and problem solving, thanks partly to my scientific and technical studies, and a great curiosity to learn new things. I am not scared about novelties and I enjoy putting myself to the test. Finally, I have a good property of language and good writing skills.
